

BLIZZARD SWEPT EASTWARD TODAY; FLOODS IN SOUTH

Winter Makes Itself Severely Felt In Various Places

Chicago, Jan. 7.—(UP)—Strengthening gales whipped a blizzard northeastward today as storms, flood and fog left a trail of disasters over the nation.

Weather observers believed eastern states would escape the brunt of the storm which was driving out over the Great Lakes today in the direction of the nation.

Southern Minnesota towns reported more snow than they had received all last winter. A foot and more of snow was general and roads in several districts were blocked. Temperatures were falling toward the zero mark.

North and South Dakota reported snow and subzero temperatures at several points.

Levees Crumble.
Continued rain in the south crumbled levees of the Tallahatchie river. Residents of a dozen villages fought general collapse of the dikes and were prepared to abandon their homes. Several levees were reported to be breaking.

Flood waters poured through the main levee near Swan Lake, Miss., threatening inundation of two small communities.

About two score persons were snowbound in the high Sierras. Relief parties were breaking a trail through the snow-choked mountain trails.

Several were reported in need of medical attention, their feet and hands frozen in the bitter cold.

FLOOD MENACE GROWS.

Glendora, Miss., Jan. 7.—(AP)—The flood swollen Tallahatchie river has torn the levee at Twilight, Miss., and a blanket of water was spread over southeastern Tallahatchie county today toward Tippoe, Macel, Sharkey and Payne.

These villages are across the river from Glendora. The break a gap of 35 feet, through which a 12 foot wall of water burst last night, was expected to relieve the river pressure here and at points south.

Eleven men estimated between 40,000 and 50,000 acres would be swamped, and planters today were moving 300 animals from Sharkey plantation which was under three feet of water.

Residents of Crowder in Quitman county, fled to high ground today through the Lambert-Marks highway, which forms a dry "bottleneck" now that water surrounds the town on three sides.

On the west of the river, relief workers inspecting the Swan Lake, Webb and Sumner areas, reported hundreds of stranded refugees in need of food and clothing, and local committees could not hope to relieve them all. R. L. Ward of Sumner said a nation-wide appeal for aid will be necessary.

GALE HITS EUROPE.

London, Jan. 7.—(UP)—A terrific gale lashed the British Isles and Holland today, disrupting shipping and air services, while floods and heavy rains isolated many towns and villages.

The wind reached hurricane velocity at the worst of the winter. Radio stations received numerous calls from ships in distress. Ships of the Royal Navy aided regular life saving services.

The hurricane reached a velocity of 63.3 miles an hour at the Scilly Islands; 82 miles an hour at Falmouth; 78 miles an hour at Birmingham, and 72 miles an hour at Salisbury.

Torrential rains flooded villages and towns. Twenty warships scheduled to join the Atlantic fleet in regular maneuvers were unable to leave Plymouth Harbor.

Sigmund Rudolph Died This Morning

Sigmund Rudolph, aged 72, a resident of Dixon for a number of years, passed away this morning at 10 o'clock at his home, 1010 Fargo avenue, death terminating an illness of many months duration. He is survived by his wife, one son, Charles of Dixon, and five daughters, Mrs. Clara Walker of this city, Mrs. George Bartholomew of California, Mrs. Edward Ziedler of Chicago, Mrs. Geneva Jacobs of this city and Miss Rose at home. Funeral arrangements have not been completed and will be announced later.

Dixon Woman Is Very Ill Abroad

George Papadakis, owner of the Manhattan cafe, last evening received a message from Helsingborg, Sweden announcing the serious illness of Mrs. Papadakis, who is visiting relatives at that place. Mrs. Papadakis left Dixon early in December for Sweden to spend several weeks visiting with members of her family and relatives. Her many friends hope for her early recovery.

LEGISLATURE IN RECESS: RELIEF BILLS ADVANCED

Fate Of Measures To Aid Cook County Up On Tuesday

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 7.—(AP)—A change in attitude over the week-end is the only thing that can save the special session of the General Assembly from coming to an abrupt ending next week, legislative leaders said today.

When the Assembly recessed at noon until next Tuesday a deadlock between downstate and Chicago over the proposed state income tax had stopped all other work.

Before going to their homes, downstate Assemblymen indicated that no more Chicago relief legislation will be acted upon until the Cook county members help pass the state income tax.

Most of the Chicagoans in the House of Representatives are on record against the income tax bill, although Mayor Anton J. Cermak told the Assembly that he and his friends would support the tax, if it were made the price of relief.

The Senate has already passed the bill. Rep. Henry Rice, (R), of Greenview, veteran of many legislative battles, and general of the forces in favor of the income tax, said today that no further action would be taken by the Assembly until the income tax is voted upon.

Has Rail Position
Tice jockeyed the income tax to the rail position by delaying action on it last night until the first thing Tuesday morning. A weary House, tired by a six hour debate on the bill, agreed to resume work on it immediately after the reading of the journal when the session reconvenes.

The keynote measure of the Chicago relief plan, the so called Kelly compromise bill for revision of the Cook county assessing machinery, also is an order of special business for Tuesday morning.

The House bill on the Kelly plan is in order of third reading but an identical bill passed by the Senate yesterday has not reached second reading and cannot be advanced to passage stage until Wednesday.

Tice indicated today that neither of these bills would be called until the income tax bill is disposed of. If the income tax bill is amended to death on second reading, many of the downstaters have indicated that they will go home and let Chicago work out its own troubles.

Price of Passage

In event the income tax bill reaches third reading, supporters of the bill may call the House bill on the Kelly compromise for passage and send it to the Senate unless Chicago members refuse to vote for the relief bill. The House bill would have hard sailing in the Senate, although the measure was approved yesterday by a vote of 48 to 1. Supporters of the income tax in the upper house, indicated that they would block any Chicago relief bills until the income tax is enacted.

On the other hand the income tax proponents will insist that their bill be given precedence over the Senate bill for the Kelly plan on Wednesday. Plans had been made for holding a perfunctory session for advancement of the Senate Kelly plan bill to third reading in the House Monday afternoon, so that it could be voted upon Tuesday before final consideration of the income tax, but these were blocked by the downstate.

Many Chicago members said today that they refused to be clubbed into voting for the income tax. Representatives from the larger urban centers are supporting the Cook county members in their fight.

PRIVATE, SECRET RITES FOR NOTED PHILANTHROPIST

Funeral Of Julius Rosenwald Held Sometime During Day

Chicago, Jan. 7.—(UP)—Julius Rosenwald who peddled newspapers for a living as a boy died yesterday Chicago's wealthiest citizen and greatest philanthropist.

In his death, the 69-year-old donor of more than 60 millions from his tremendous fortune built by his merchandising genius left a code to guide those who seek to benefit mankind with their wealth.

"Give for the living," Rosenwald whose last thoughts were of his charities, said. "Those who seek to perpetuate to create for themselves a kind of immortality will fail, because no institution can live forever."

All his endowments must be spent within 25 years of his death.

The Alger-like story of Rosenwald's success was a saga of American life. The boy who sold newspapers and chronos on the streets of Springfield, Ill., and pumped a church organ at 5 cents an hour rose to chairmanship of the Board of Sears, Roebuck & Co., the mail order house he built.

Knew Responsibilities
But with success, came a tremendous sense of the responsibilities of enormous wealth. More, perhaps, than any American, Rosenwald studied the uses his fortune could be put to and directed its flow back to the channels from which it came.

Personally he was modest. His funeral will be characteristic of this modesty. In accordance with one of Rosenwald's last expressed wishes the time and place of the services will be kept secret. Lessing Rosenwald, his oldest son, said the ceremony would be conducted today but none but members of the family and most intimate friends would attend. The philanthropist asked that no flowers be sent.

Rosenwald's genius of philanthropy was equalled only by his genius of business. In both fields, he was a pioneer with radical ideas.

He amassed his fortune by developing a new merchandising technique.

Sold New Idea

When he entered the mail order fields its possibilities were unexplored. As so many other of Americans.

Bride Of 18 and Husband Are Held

Chicago, Jan. 7.—(UP)—An 18-year-old bride, her husband and three young men were arrested today by Woodlawn police and charged with committing numerous south side holdups during the past several months.

The bride, brunette and attractive, said she was Mrs. Gene Pust, 18, but refused to tell more about herself, except that she came from a prominent downstate family, and was married at DeKalb, Ill.

Her husband, Edward Pust, 23, also refused to give details about her maiden name and family.

Weeks of investigating preceded the police descent on the South Blackstone Avenue apartment.

Mrs. Pust was found there alone. The police arrested her and waited for the return of Pust and his three companions. They were unarmed, but a gun was found cached at a telephone stand in the hallway.

DISCHARGED MAN MURDERED WIFE OF EX-EMPLOYER

The Death of St. Louis Church Worker Is Finally Solved

St. Louis, Jan. 7.—(UP)—An alleged confession by a discharged employee of L. E. Sauer, machine shop owner, has solved the murder of Sauer's wife, Etta, 45, church worker, police said today.

Chief of Police James C. Ryan of Maplewood said that Charles S. Campbell had made a written confession "that entirely clears up the case."

The body of the woman was found in the dining room of the Sauer home Monday by her 14-year-old daughter, Betty on her return from school. The woman had been beaten to death with an iron pipe.

Chief Ryan quoted Campbell, a 29-year-old machinist, as saying he was "desperately in need of money to take my wife away from the city to get rid of an admirer."

Although Mrs. Sauer handled the "money end" of her husband's business Sauer had denied that any was taken by the murder.

Although full details of the confession were not revealed, Ryan declared, "there will be no other arrests."

He promised however, that "there is a surprise in store." He refused to elaborate on that statement.

According to roomers at a rooming house where Campbell had been staying, Campbell returned home the day of the murder wearing a new hat replacing the customary cap he wore. His actions aroused the suspicions of other roomers, police said.

It had been established that the woman was beaten sometime between 10 A. M. and noon. She had been struck approximately 20 times by an iron pipe, found under the piano.

Campbell after telling of domestic trouble and his discharge from Sauer's employ said:

"Last Monday I decided to talk to Mrs. Sauer. I knew she was a great church worker and I thought if I told her about my troubles between my wife and me, she would give me some advice."

"I went to a hardware store and purchased a short piece of pipe with the intention of getting enough money to take my wife from St. Louis. Then I went out to Mrs. Sauer's home."

"I told her I wanted to talk with her. I told her about my family troubles and of the differences between my wife and me. I told her that if we could only get away from St. Louis we would be happier."

"She did not agree with everything I told her and on one occasion told me the whole thing was very foolish and she did not want to discuss the matter any further. She got up from the chair."

"I became very angry and pulled the pipe out of my pocket and hit her over the head. After striking her the first time everything became a blur. I don't remember anything after that except that I hit her repeatedly over the head."

"I remember throwing the pipe behind one of the chairs. I looked behind me and saw Mrs. Sauer's feet on the floor. One of her knees was bent."

"I went to the front door, took the key out of the lock and then went back into the room again and pulled down the shades on the front windows. Then I went to the front door again, went outside and locked the door behind me."

Democratic Bosses Will Ignore Raskob

Washington, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Congressional Democrats, who regard themselves as the real voice of the party, intend to ignore the prohibition issue raised by Chairman Raskob of the National Committee.

It is the firm conviction of the party chieftains at Capitol Hill that Democratic success in this year's presidential campaign rests in solution of the economic crisis confronting the nation.

Moreover, the Democrats in Congress for the most part believe the prohibition issue is one which splits both parties and should be kept beyond the realm of a party tie.

Under the leadership of Senator Robinson of Arkansas and Speaker Garner, the Democrats intend to focus every attention on the economic issues. If the prohibition issue comes up in the national convention, as Mr. Raskob says it must, then that is the time, they say, to meet it, but no sooner.

In Congress Today

Washington, Jan. 7.—(UP)—The Senate today began consideration of President Hoover's project to stimulate business and employment through a $2,000,000,000 injection of government-supported credit.

It took up the measure shortly after some 13,000 unemployed from Pennsylvania led by Father James R. Cox had marched to the Capitol to demand federal aid.

Senator Walcott, Repn. Conn., opened the debate in support of the President's Reconstruction Finance Corporation. He declared it would restore business confidence and put commodity prices on the upgrade.

The House was forced to adjourn for lack of business, although its committees were working at top speed to prepare emergency measures.

Democratic Leader Rainey announced the House would take up the Democratic tariff revision bill tomorrow. The Ways and Means committee was expected to approve the measure this afternoon, although it was denounced by Undersecretary of Treasury Mills in hearings this morning.

Republican leaders assailed the Democrats for putting tariff revision ahead of President Hoover's financial measures. Democrats replied that Mr. Hoover should have called Congress in extra session last summer or fall. Chairman Steagall announced the Banking committee expected to complete action tomorrow on the Reconstruction Corporation bill which was taken up in the Senate today.

Efforts to slash government wages and salaries were checked when the House Expenditures committee tabled all measures on that subject.

Proposals to modify the prohibition laws also received a setback. The House Judiciary committee postponed consideration of all such bills.

The House Commerce committee voted to investigate public utilities holding companies. The inquiry must be approved by the whole House.

Hearings were started by the Senate Navy committee on proposals to build the United States fleet up to London treaty limits. Secretary Adams, denounced yesterday for endorsing a similar House bill before it had been approved by the Budget Bureau, declined to express an opinion on the Senate measures.

Chairman Vinson of the House Naval committee called on President Hoover, but indicated he found little White House support for his plan to build 120 new warships at a cost of $616,000,000.

James C. Corliss of the Commerce Department told the Senate's international banking investigators that certain Latin-American nations had borrowed too much money. The State Department replied to Congressional critics with assertions that it had never passed on the security or merit of foreign loans.

Senator Couzens, Repn. Mich., introduced a resolution which would instruct the Radio Commission to determine the feasibility of government operation and ownership of radio broadcasting facilities.

Board Will Decide Who Is Prosecutor

Sterling, Ill., Jan. 7.—(UP)—Confronted by the unprecedented situation of three State's Attorneys claiming office at the same time, Whiteside County Supervisors will convene in extraordinary session at Morrison Monday to determine which is the legal prosecutor.

State's Attorney Vincent Bell, bedfast for weeks, appointed former State's Attorney Robert W. Besse, now under federal indictment on liquor conspiracy charges, to serve for him. A faction of the county board, however, objected to Besse's selection, and Circuit Judge L. E. Telleen of Cambridge, at the request, named Attorney J. J. Ludens of Sterling, former prosecutor, to the post.

Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom was asked to send a member of his staff to Morrison to take over the prosecutor's duties. Carlstrom replied, however, that he could not spare an assistant for this purpose.

Until the board meets Monday the question of who is the legal successor to Bell will be held in abeyance.

Body Of Lost Army Aviator Is Found

Elkins, W. Va., Jan. 7.—(AP)—A lonely, pine-covered knob of granite in the Cheat mountains has given up the secret of the disappearance of Lieut. E. H. Bobbitt, Jr., 24, Army Air Corps pilot.

Bobbitt's body, sitting in the cockpit of his burned plane, was found last yesterday by a farmer and a trapper. They had scaled Pools Knob to look out over the surrounding country for the missing plane.

The ship struck a tree and burned at the very peak of the crag.

The aviator disappeared Christmas Day while en route from Selfridge Field, Mich., to his home at Hot Springs, Va., to spend the holidays with his parents. For two weeks hundreds of men and a number of aviators had searched the mountains.

HEARING POSTPONED

Washington, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Consideration of the Patman resolution impeaching Secretary Mellon was postponed today by the House Judiciary committee until next week.

This action was agreed upon by committee members because of the delay in having the resolution reach the committee formally through parliamentary channels.

PALMYRA WOMAN ENDED LIFE IN CISTERN AT HOME

Mrs. Bert Pearl Jumped Into Water During Husband's Absence

Despondency over the loss of almost the entire herd of cattle due to the compulsory bovine tuberculosis test, which is now in the closing process in Lee county, is believed the cause of the death by drowning of Mrs. Elenora Quick Pearl, wife of Bert Pearl, of Palmyra township at her home late yesterday afternoon.

Twenty-three head of cattle were condemned by state veterinarians late in October when the herd was tested, leaving but one calf. The loss was keenly felt by Mrs. Pearl who became quite despondent and apparently planned her self-destruction yesterday afternoon when she insisted that her husband accompany a neighbor, Adam Foreman to Dixon.

Mr. Pearl returned home about 4:30 and found the dog in the yard. This aroused his suspicions as during his absences from the home, Mrs. Pearl had always kept the dog in the house. Upon attempting to enter the house he found the door which was usually used, locked, but he succeeded in entering through another door. The fire in the stove was not burning and his calls for his wife were unanswered. He conducted a search of the rooms and found no trace of his wife until he went to the summer kitchen in the rear of the house, where he found the boards which had covered the cistern, removed and a cloth lying near the opening. With a flash light he discovered the lifeless body of the woman in the cistern.

Had Meditated Act
Neighbors were summoned and about 5 o'clock the body was removed. The condition of the body indicated that she had been in the water over an hour. At the inquest which was conducted at the home this morning at 10 o'clock by Coroner Frank M. Banker, it was indicated that the woman had meditated for several days taking her own life.

Mr. and Mrs. Pearl had lived for more than twenty years on what is known as the Jack "Prophet" Myers farm in Palmyra township. Through an exchange of properties recently, became necessary for them to leave the farm, and this, coupled with the condemning of the herd of dairy cattle had caused Mrs. Pearl to become very melancholy. Neighbors who testified at the inquest stated that they had noticed the change in her mental condition.

Changed Her Clothing

The husband testified that Mrs. Pearl insisted yesterday morning that he accompany Mr. Foreman to Dixon on a business visit which he had planned to make today. She prepared an early dinner and he left home about 12 o'clock with Mr. Foreman. Mr. Pearl telephoned his wife from Dixon about 1 o'clock and again about 2 o'clock, leaving her at 4 o'clock and arriving home about a half hour later. The clothing on the body indicated that she had changed to heavy overcoats and clothes for added weight. She left no note to explain her act, her husband testified. The jury returned a verdict finding that death was due to drowning with suicidal intent while in a despondent condition of mind.

Mrs. Elenora Quick Pearl was born in Sterling, November 2, 1870. For more than 20 years, she with her husband have resided on the Myers farm in Palmyra township and both were well known in this city and Sterling.

Funeral arrangements had not been completed today, pending word from her relatives residing in the east, but services will probably be held Saturday afternoon with burial in Riverside cemetery at Sterling.

Farmers Request Tax Reductions

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 7.—(UP)—Resolutions requesting reductions in farm tax rates to the level of city taxes and the slashing of operating expenses of county and state governments were adopted yesterday by Sangamon county farmers at their annual meeting.

Approximately 300 farmers from all parts of the county attended the meeting. Among the speakers were Earl C. Smith, President of the Illinois Agricultural Association, and Donald Kirkpatrick, legal counsel for the association.

Legislative programs sponsored by the association were discussed by Smith. Kirkpatrick stressed the steady and consistent growth of co-operative marketing in his address.

Defense Has Chance In Carthage Court
Carthage, Ill., Jan. 7.—(AP)—The state today rested its case against Dr. Clyde L. Casey, charged with the murder of Oliver E. Peck. The physician is accused of killing Peck in an argument when the youth brought Casey's daughter, Jane, home early in the morning after a party.

The defense opened with a line of 44 character witnesses, mostly from LaHarpe and including Mayor H. E. Puckett and three ministers.

Lyle Landis was recalled to the stand by the state to confirm his testimony before the Coroner's jury that Dr. Casey struck both his brother, Royal Landis and himself. The Landis youths were in the party.

PALE FLOWER
SOMETHING for my heart's delight.
A pale white flower in the night.
A fragrant bit of mystery
Beside a silver pool.
Beside the water cool,
Oh, memory that time endears!
A treasure held against the years,
Something for my heart's delight,
A pale white flower in the night.

George Washington's Wedding Anniversary

In the life-story of any great man, the incident most certain to interest every human being of every age is the romance of his courtship and his marriage. Greatness may remove him from average humanity in every other respect, but in the element of romance he touches the lives of all where all understand him.

This day, January 6, probably old style, marks the 173rd anniversary of the wedding of George and Martha Washington, in so far as historians have been able to fix the date, says the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission. While the records do not state the fact, it is probable that George and Martha had heard much of each other before they met. Washington had already established his fame as a daring soldier by his movements against the French on the Ohio and by his courage at the Battle of Braddock's Field, and the young colonel, so often in Williamsburg, the social as well as political capital of Virginia, must have known of the handsome, socially prominent, and wealthy young Widow Custis.

Their meeting occurred when Washington, then commanding the military defenses of the Virginia frontier against the Indians, had hurried down to Williamsburg to urge in person certain needed improvements in his command. At William's Ferry, over the Pamunkey River, tradition has it, Washington paused at the house of Major Chamberlayne, which may have been on May 27, 1758, and was pressed by this friend to stop and partake of hospitality. Washington, on his way to see the Governor on important business, at first declined, but at Major Chamberlayne's insistence agreed to stay at dinner. The argument that turned the decision seems to have been Major Chamberlayne's remark that the charming Mrs. Custis was also a guest at his house.

There is almost a humorous note in this story which fate seemed to cast about Washington's heart. With him was his faithful servant Bishop, whom General Braddock had turned over to him, and whom Washington instructed to stay by their horses until dinner was over. The old orderly well knew his master's punctuality and took it for granted that the pause at the Chamberlayne home would be a brief one. But dinner passed, the sun sank lower in the West, and still Washington had not emerged. At last, so the story goes, Bishop was ordered to stable the horses for the night. It was only too evident that George Washington had found business that to him was more important at the moment than his errand with the Governor.

On the next day the journey to Williamsburg was resumed, but no sooner was the business with the Governor transacted than Washington hurried away to the "White House" on the Pamunkey where the Widow Custis lived. When he left, on June 5, the deeply smitten young Virginia colonel must have been in high spirits, for he took with him the lady's promise to wed him as soon as military service on the Ohio was finished.

To this day there is a dispute as to whether the wedding of George and Martha Washington occurred at the bride's home or at St. Peter's Church in Williamsburg, but the rector of St. Peter's, the Reverend Mr. Mossom, is known to have officiated at the ceremony, and the date of the marriage is fixed by Jared Sparks as of January 6, 1759. Wherever the event occurred, it was a notable and brilliant affair, with the Governor, the military and civil authorities, and the socially elite in attendance.

* George Washington was arrayed as the most brilliant figure in the whole assemblage. Naturally so important a matter as the bride's attire was not to be lost in oblivion, and we know that Ma.tha's wedding gown was "a satin quilt," over which a heavy white silk, inter-woven with threads of silver, was looped back with white satin ribbons, richly brocaded in a leaf pattern. There were close elbow sleeves revealing a puff and frill of lace. Strings of pearls were woven in and out of her powdered hair. Her high-heeled slippers were of white satin, with brilliant buckles.

Martha Washington had been born Martha Dandridge. At the age of seventeen she married Col. Daniel Parka Custis, a wealthy man who died eight years after their marriage, leaving her two children and the mistress of a large fortune. After her wedding to George Washington, months had still to elapse before the happily wedded pair could settle down at Washington's estate of Mount Vernon. Having been elected to the House of Burgesses, Washington was obliged to attend its sessions, and the couple remained at Williamsburg until May, 1759. Then they went to the beautiful estate on the Potomac, to make it their home for the rest of their lives, and to leave it a shrine forever to millions of Americans who hold in reverent memory every incident in their life together.

Nothing in all history outdoes in beauty Washington's attachment to his wife, as she in turn was his reliance, a source of encouragement in all his trials, a dignified figure in herself, as firmly planted as her great husband in the affectionate memory of succeeding generations of Americans. So, January 6, will linger in our history as the beginning of one of the stately and lovely romances of all time.

French Minister Of War Died This Morn

Paris, Jan. 7.—(AP)—A French Cabinet shake-up on the eve of two important international conferences, may follow the death early today of Andre Maginot, six-foot former Army "top kick" who held the post of War Minister.

The question was complicated by the health of the veteran Foreign Minister, Aristide Briand, which, some Paris morning papers said, is so poor as to make it impossible for him to stand the strain of conferences.

M. Maginot died at 2 A. M. of typhoid fever, with complications. He was 54 years old. He was made Minister of War for the first time by former Premier Poincare in 1922.

The names of Andre Tardieu and Paul Painleve, both former Premiers, were put forward in political circles today as possible successors of Maginot.

The cabinet arranged to meet late today to formulate plans for both the disarmament and reparations conferences.

Man Who Claims
He's Jesse James
Is Seeking Pardon

Excelsior Springs, Mo., Jan. 7.—(AP)—When a man names Jesse James was buried near Kearney, Mo., in 1892, it was believed one of the middle-west most notorious outlaws had been put to rest.

Now comes an aged man who says the historians were mistaken and that he is the real Jesse James. James "the latest" appeared in this section two years ago and won some local attention as "William Jesse James," cousin of the outlaw. Now he says he none other than the real Jesse James.

Accompanied by several sympathetic but skeptical citizens, he went to Jefferson City yesterday to seek a pardon for his real or fancied crimes of a half a century ago. Governor Henry S. Caulfield, however, preferred to believe the historians and declined to comply with the aged man's request.

He returned here last night. In an interview he spoke accurately of events which took place in the days of the James boys, Jesse and Frank. His facial features were hidden by a shaggy beard, his clothes ragged and torn.

He was in doubt about his exact age, variously giving it as 89, 90, and 92 years. Historians say the real James was born in 1847 and had he lived to the present day would be 84 years old. James was supposed to have a finger missing. All the fingers of James "the latest" are intact.

Prison records bore out his statement that he had served a sentence in the penitentiary at Chester, Ill., for manslaughter in connection with the slaying of Everett Shelton, five years ago. He was known there as Jesse James.

Hope To Recover
More Bank Bonds

Chicago, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Agents of the "Secret Six" hope to recover soon another $1,000,000 in negotiable securities, stolen from five banks by a $10,000,000 bandit syndicate. The agents said they had uncovered evidence which disclosed the existence of a gang of 150 men, operating in 40 states. These men, Alexander Jamies, Chief Investigator for the "Secret Six," and Sgt. Roy Steffens, assigned to his staff, said, have taken from $7,000,000 to $10,000,000 in the last year and a half from banks throughout the nation.

The two agents said the syndicate, headed by some man whose name has not yet been discovered, forced local organizations of bank robbers to join them. In this way they paid tribute to the "mother" group. In return for the tribute, the syndicate disposed of the loot, insured legal assistance and provided refuge.

BULLETIN

New Delhi, India, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Reports from London today that an attempt had been made here on the life of Viceroy Lord Willingdon were described this afternoon as absolutely without foundation.

Bombay, Jan. 7.—(AP)—India's Nationalist forces, momentarily stunned by the severity of the sweeping restrictive ordinances imposed upon them by the government, appeared today to have taken to cover.

The country, thus far during the renewal of the civil disobedience campaign, has been free from grave disorders or serious bloodshed and a paralyzing reaction upon trade, especially upon British goods, as a result of the Nationalist's boycott, has been the chief reaction.

British leaders were confident of victory today. They expressed the conviction that the government was capable of dealing with any emergency. The real feeling in the Indian mind, however, was undetermined. Leaders of the Nationalist Congress who are still outside of jail refrained from extreme measures, but an ugly, sullenness hung in the air.

One of the dangers looming in the background was the possibility of a renewal of the strife between Hindu and Moslem millions such as caused the bloody Cawnpore riots last year during which members of the two factions cut each other's throats until 1,000 lay dead.

WOMEN GIVEN PLACES
Poona, India, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Women were appointed to two high places in the Indian Nationalist movement today to fill the places of men who have been imprisoned by the government. An 18-year-old Brahmin girl was appointed dictator of the Poona Youth League and a Brahmin woman was made Dictator of the Maharashtra Congress.

AERIAL FORCES OF NATIONS TO
BE BIG PROBLEM
Limitation Of Newest
Fighting Weapons
Is Considered

Washington, Jan. 7.—(UP)—An effort to limit the weapons used in man's newest fighting arena, the skies, will be made by the general disarmament conference. This is one of the hardest problems to be faced by the statesmen who will meet in Geneva Feb. 2. In limiting aircraft they will be dealing with instruments on which the nations are now spending millions and which they will not freely surrender.

The strong aerial powers at the conference will be the United States, France, Great Britain, and Italy. Some military experts rate France as the strongest air power because of its superiority of planes. There are others, however, who give the United States this position because of the modernity of its ships and the excellent training of its pilots.

Any accurate comparison of air power is difficult because there are so many variable factors—speed, armament, climbing ability, structural strength and mobility. Whether the United States is willing to reduce its air corps is a question the Hoover administration must answer during the conference. Officials here refuse even to predict the American stand on this point.

One of the outstanding problems which has arisen during all discussions of aircraft limitations is whether military flight strength can really be limited without also limiting commercial planes that can readily be used in war a technical committee studied this question during the Washington conference and found military and civil aviation were so closely related that the first could not be limited without a second. A majority of the experts who pondered the question at the preparatory disarmament commission's meeting came to virtually the same conclusion.

However no nation was willing to throttle the growth of commercial aviation, consequently the draft agreement on which the coming conference will build provides only for limiting military aircraft.

Airplanes will be restricted first, by number, and second, by total horsepower. Dirigibles are to be limited by number. Total horsepower and total volume.

DEPT. OF STATE IN DEFENSE OF
BANK POLICIESPrepares Statement to Be Sent To Senate
Committee Today

Washington, Jan. 7.—(AP)—In a statement outlining its dealings with bankers over a number of years, the State Department today formulated a reply to the criticism of its relation to the flotation of foreign securities in this country.

Secretary Stimson prepared the statement after a Commerce Department official had told the Senate Finance committee how a Bolivian bond issue had not been approved by the department because of strained diplomatic relations between that country and this.

Senator Glass, a Virginia Democrat charged that the State Department was responsible for any losses to the American public because of foreign lending.

The statement of the Secretary will include copies of all form letters used during recent years in dealing with bankers on prospective loans to foreign governments or industries.

The former policies to be outlined include those of former Secretary Kellogg of the State Department, Secretary Mellon and President Hoover when he was Secretary of Commerce.

It also will contain a resume of the German situation in connection with American loan policy.

Meanwhile, a warning by Secretary Kellogg to American bankers in 1926 to study carefully further German loans was read to the Senate Finance committee.

Further testimony that private loans were floated in this country for South American countries despite adverse information at the Commerce Department was presented today to the committee.

James C. Corliss, specialist on Latin-American finance in the Commerce Department, testified that Latin-America had over-borrowed by 1928 and 1929.

He said the Commerce Department's information was available for any American citizen.

More than $800,000,000 worth of Latin-American bonds floated in this country since the war are now in default, he said.

LEGISLATURE IN RECESS: RELIEF
BILLS ADVANCED

ed among Chicago leaders today. The leaders were cheered by passage in the Senate, with but one dissenting vote of an act reforming the Cook county tax machinery. This reform is considered essential if the city's finances are to be rehabilitated, the empty coffers filled and employees paid.

Tuesday the major battle of the fight against municipal bankruptcy will come at the state Capitol at Springfield when the House takes up the measure.

Among the Representatives serious opposition to the relief plan has developed. Fear has been expressed that those opposed to the bill may prevent its enactment as an emergency measure or emasculate it of its reform features.

Meanwhile the school board which owes teachers and employees $24,000,000 and has paid only six weeks salary since last April, ordered further curtailment of educational staffs and service.

Salaries of more than 1,500 teachers were cut, vacation schools will be eliminated, further curtailment of evening schools was ordered and sick leave pay cut off.

Trustees predicted they would be able to obtain no more funds until July at the earliest and that the schools will have to be run for the remainder of the year with payless employees and supplies obtained on credit.

Whether this will be possible, trustees said, is highly doubtful since many employees already are near destitution.

Form Home Defenders
Appointment of receivers for any taxing bodies of Cook county which, now or later, may be unable to meet their financial obligations is advocated by the Home Defenders Association, Chicago, granted a state charter here today.

The association's charter also states it will advocate enactment of a law to do away with the present system of government in Chicago and substitute some commission form of government, directly responsible to the people.

The form of government to be substituted should be "measurably satisfactory to the people, and able to stem the tide of graft, waste and hoodlumism which now fills the hearts of Chicago with despair and promises, and which if not soon checked, will drive the city and many of its people into bankruptcy," the charter said.

Headquarters of the association will be located at No. 1 North La Salle St.

Directors listed included: A. B. Hull, R. D. Netherford, F. S. Hirsch, E. R. Naffziger, R. J. Cain, T. J. Rogers and C. A. McCutchen all of Chicago.

George Washington's Wedding Anniversary

In the life-story of any great man, the incident most certain to interest every human being of every age is the romance of his courtship and his marriage. Greatness may remove him from average humanity in every other respect, but in this element of romance he touches the lives of all where all understand him.

This day, January 6, probably old style, marks the 173rd anniversary of the wedding of George and Martha Washington, in so far as historians have been able to fix the date, says the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission. While the records do not state the fact, it is probable that George and Martha had heard much of each other before they met. Washington had already established his fame as a daring soldier by his movements against the French on the Ohio and by his courage at the Battle of Braddock's Field, and the young colonel, so often in Williamsburg, the social as well as political capital of Virginia, must have known of the handsome, socially prominent, and wealthy young Widow Custis.

Their meeting occurred when Washington, then commanding the military defenses of the Virginia frontier against the Indians, had hurried down to Williamsburg to urge in person certain needed improvements in his command. At William's Ferry, over the Pamunkey River, tradition has it, Washington paused at the house of Major Chamberlayne, which may have been on May 27, 1758, and was pressed by his host to stop and partake of hospitality. Washington, on his way to see the Governor on important business, at first declined, but at Major Chamberlayne's insistence agreed to stay at dinner. The argument that turned the decision seems to have been Major Chamberlayne's remark that the charming Mrs. Custis was also a guest at his house.

There is almost a humorous note in this story which fate seemed to cast about Washington's heart. With him was his faithful servant Bishop, whom General Braddock had turned over to him, and whom Washington instructed to stay by their horses until dinner was over. The old orderly well knew his master's punctuality and took it for granted that the pause at the Chamberlayne home would be a brief one. But dinner passed, the sun sank lower in the West, and still Washington had not emerged. At last, so the story goes, Bishop was ordered to stable the horses for the night. It was only too evident that George Washington had found business that to him was more important at the moment than his errand with the Governor.

On the next day the journey to Williamsburg was resumed, but no sooner was the business with the Governor transacted than Washington hurried away to the "White House" on the Pamunkey where the Widow Custis lived. When he left, on June 5, the deeply smitten young Virginia colonel must have been in high spirits, for he took with him the lady's promise to wed him as soon as military service on the Ohio was finished.

To this day there is a dispute as to whether the wedding of George and Martha Washington occurred at the bride's home or at St. Peter's Church in Williamsburg, but the reverend Mr. Mossom, is known to have officiated at the ceremony, and the date of the marriage is fixed by Jared Sparks as of January 6, 1759. Wherever the event occurred, it was a notable and brilliant affair, with the Governor, the military and civil authorities, and the socially elite in attendance.

George Washington was arrayed as the most brilliant figure in the whole assemblage. Naturally so important a matter as the bride's attire was not to be lost in oblivion, and we know that Martha's wedding gown was "a satin quilt," over which a heavy white silk, interwoven with threads of silver, was looped back with white satin ribbons, richly brocaded in a leaf pattern. There were close elbow sleeves revealing a puff and frill of lace. Strings of pearls were woven in and out of her powdered hair. Her high-heeled slippers were of white satin, with brilliant buckles.

Martha Washington had been born Martha Dandridge. At the age of seventeen she married Col. Daniel Parka Custis, a wealthy man who died eight years after their marriage, leaving her two children and the mistress of a large fortune. After her wedding to George Washington, months had still to elapse before the happily wedded pair could settle down at Washington's estate of Mount Vernon. Having been elected to the House of Burgesses, Washington was obliged to attend its sessions, and the couple remained at Williamsburg until May, 1759. Then they went to the beautiful estate on the Potomac, to make it their home for the rest of their lives, and to leave it a shrine forever to millions of Americans who hold in reverent memory every incident in their life together.

Nothing in all history outdoes in beauty Washington's attachment to his wife, as she in turn was his reliance, a source of encouragement in all his trials, a dignified figure in herself, as firmly planted as her great husband in the affectionate memory of succeeding generations of Americans. So, January 6, will linger in our history as the beginning of one of the stately and lovely romances of all time.

French Minister Of War Died This Morn

Paris, Jan. 7—(AP)—A French Cabinet shake-up on the eve of two important international conferences may follow the death early today of Andre Maginot, six-foot former Army "top kick" who held the post of War Minister.

The question was complicated by the health of the veteran Foreign Minister, Aristide Briand, which, some Paris morning papers said, is so poor as to make it impossible for him to stand the strain of conferences.

M. Maginot died at 2 A. M. of typhoid fever, with complications. He was 54 years old. He was made Minister of War for the first time by former Premier Poincare in 1922.

The names of Andre Tardieu and Paul Painleve, both former Premiers, were put forward in political circles today as possible successors of Maginot.

The cabinet arranged to meet late today to formulate plans for both the disarmament and reparations conferences.

Chicago Skater To Attempt Come-Back

FULL FREEDOM IS DANGER TO LIFE OF PHILIPPINES

Leaders Of Legislature Of Islands Realize The Situation

Washington Jan. 7.—(UP)—A mission composed of leaders of the Philippine legislature is due here next week to drive the best bargain it can with the administration in the direction of greater freedom for the Philippine Islands.

In addition this mission will have to take a position regarding many Philippine bills now pending in Congress. These include six for independence, two for immigration restriction, and one for limitation of sugar and coconut oil import from the islands.

This mission is the victim of a strange turn of affairs. Though sentiment in the islands for independence has reached its highest peak, through the independent strength in Congress has grown rapidly, and though powerful American financial and agricultural interests have now swung to independence for selfish reasons, the Filipinos are confronted with the danger that complete freedom now would wreck them economically.

Better informed Filipino leaders see this danger and it puts them in a difficult position. If they return for independence, or even increase autonomy, Congress would emphatically insist on erecting barriers against Philippine imports. American farm organizations and Cuban sugar interests financed by American capital are demanding that these imports be subjected to the tariff. Pacific coast labor leaders are in a position against Filipino laborers.

The result is that more experienced island leaders are swinging to the view that it would be better to secure legislation beneficial to the islands even if it did not grant immediate absolute independence, than to persist in a fight for outright freedom.

As an alternative, they are talking of a plan which would establish an autonomous government with an elected governor instead of one appointed at Washington, to be followed by a plebiscite on independence at the end of 10 years. The 10 year interval, the exports of sugar and coconut oil and migration of island laborers to the United States would be limited by agreement.

This plan, considerably modified, is the basis of the Hawes-Cutting bill which has the most support in Congress. It provides for holding the plebiscite after five years instead of ten. Instead of limiting imports by agreement, it would, after the first year, apply 25 per cent of the Hawley-Smoot tariff rates to island imports, increasing this by the same amount each year so that the full tariff would be effective after five years.

The administration is not prepared to go that far and opposes fixing a time when the islands could make their independence. It contends that this is in effect an attempt to predict that at a certain time the islands will be ready for independence, and would be an unwise future commitment.

However pressure in Congress is growing for the Hawes-Cutting plan and if it were brought to a vote many believe it would pass substantially in its present form.

This is the first picture showing how the collapse of the roof of the library, housed in the Sixtus V or left wing of the Vatican palace in Rome, showered the interior with wreckage. Five workmen and Professor Vapasso were killed and priceless volumes and manuscripts were destroyed. The above photo shows how aging timbers cracked in "The Hall of a Hundred Days" and allowed heavy beams, slating and supports to crash inside. Note the enormous gap in the roof through which another wing of the Vatican can be seen.

LEAVENWORTH'S BIRD MAN TO BE ALLOWED HOBBY

Started Experiments In Prison When Sparrow
Flew Into Cell

Washington, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The bird man of Leavenworth penitentiary can keep his canaries.

A general prohibition of private "businesses" in the prisons threatened the avocation of Robert Stroud twice a murderer.

But officials today fitted the rule to the case, permitting him to continue as a hobby-rider unique among all the federal prison population.

Moreover, he probably will be given a double cell for his work, and an oculist will guard his eyes from injury from the artificial light under which he studies. The curious case has moved one official to determination Stroud shall have a microscope and a scientific test of a bird-cure he developed.

Something over 23 years ago, Stroud, a youth of 20, left home in Seattle for Alaska. In a barroom in Juneau, he quarreled, fought, and struck a fatal blow. Convicted of manslaughter, he was sent to Leavenworth. Seven years later, he gave the signal for a riot-attempt by fatally stabbing a guard in the mess hall. Convicted again of murder, he was saved from the gallows by Woodrow Wilson. He has been in "the hole" as the prisoners call solitary confinement, ever since.

One day a pair of sparrows drifted into his cell. Stroud tamed them, and got the idea of raising a few canaries. Soon there was a three-tiered row of cages on the cell walls. When the psittacosis, or parrot's fever, epidemic occurred several years ago, he volunteered to be inoculated to demonstrate that remedy he had produced would cure it.

But last July the general order banning prison business went out. Also his spending money is limited to $10 a month.

So Sanford Bates, Director of the Prison Bureau, has approved a plan. Stroud will continue his avocation in a corner cell, using the adjoining cell also for his live yellow stock. He will sell his surplus, but the proceeds will be credited to his account. He can spend only $10 a month, but he can purchase cuttlefish or any other supply through the prison clerk's office.

Where Are Yesterday's Movie Stars Today —Some Go Unrecognized; Some Forgotten; Some Are Dead—

By DAN THOMAS

Hollywood, Calif.—(NEA Service)—Names that sparked in electric lights, five, ten, fifteen years ago are now referred to as "stars of yesterday." Cinematically they are dead—a few actually have passed on.

Constance Talmadge or Ruth Roland, once known wherever pictures were shown, could go any place today without being recognized. Even right here in Hollywood, where once they reigned as queens, they are almost unknown. Although married, Connie still manages to spend considerable time in the film capital. Ruth too lives here with her husband, Ben Bard, but her only activity in a business sense is dabbling in real estate—at which she has managed to accumulate quite a fortune.

Then there was Edith Storey, who was a big star for Vitagraph. Now she is running a large chicken farm on Long Island. Flora Finch, another Vitagraph star, came out of obscurity a short time ago and announced that she is going to stage a comeback. And Carlyle Blackwell, who once gained considerable prominence appearing opposite Alice Joyce, plans to do the same.

Miss Joyce recently has been appearing in vaudeville, doing an act with her former husband, Tom Moore, himself a film star some years back. Ruth Stonehouse, a name one seldom hears any more, is living quietly in Hollywood with her husband, Felix Hughes.

Ethel Clayton was found a few days ago playing a small role in "Hotel Continental," an independent production. Grace Cunard once a famous serial star, still lives almost within the shadow of the old Universal studio, where she made her biggest pictures, and does small bits whenever she can get them.

Marguerite Clark, probably the best loved actress of her day, is making a success of being the wife of a large plantation owner near New Orleans. Theda Bara, the first official film vamp, is living in Hollywood with her director-husband, Charles Brabin.

King Baggott, once a great star as well as a leading director, now is down and out. Francis X. Bushman, a great favorite some years ago, is playing in a stock company in Chicago and occasionally broadcasts stories about the Hollywood of yesterday over the radio. J. Warren Kerrigan, one of the real virile heroes of the old silent screen, has definitely retired and is living quietly in his small Hollywood home.

Nazimova and Alice Brady, both former picture notables, now are Movie stars of yesterday. (1) Marguerite Clark, (2) Betty Blythe, (3) Ethel Clayton, (4) Ruth Roland, (5) the late Wally Reid.

scoring great hits on Broadway in the Eugene O'Neill's "Mourning Becomes Electra." Katherine MacDonald, once known as the most beautiful woman in pictures, has retired and is now living quietly in Hollywood. George C. Walsh, a former star in his own right, has given up acting for good and now is an assistant director to his brother Raoul.

Among those who have passed on are Rudolph Valentino, Wallace Reid, Harold Lockwood, Sidney Drew, Lon Chaney, Dustin Farnum, Larry Semon, Milton Sills, Jeanne Eagles, William Russell, Gladys Brockwell, Barbara La Marr, Mabel Normand, Florence La Badie, Olive Thomas, Theodore Roberts, Clarence Seymour, Alma Rubens, and Martha Mansfield.

World Zionist Leader Visits U. S. to Celebrate 50 Years of Progress in Rebuilding Palestine

By NEA Service—

New York—The modern message and significance of the great nationalist movement in Zionism, in Palestine is said to be laid before the Jews of America this month by Nahum K. Sokolow, world leader of the activities in rebuilding the Jewish homeland.

Famed scholar, executive and diplomat, Sokolow came to the United States at an important time in the history of the movement. On January 10, Jews throughout the world will observe the 50th anniversary of the beginning of colonization in Palestine, and the 30th anniversary of the establishment of the Jewish National Fund—the land purchasing agency of the Zionist organization.

That same date, incidentally will mark the 73rd birthday of Sokolow himself, who as president of the Jewish Agency, with headquarters in London, has received the highest post that it is possible for his people to confer. On January 17, he will be guest of honor at the National Conference on Palestine, held in New York, and thereafter will visit about a dozen other large American cities.

"This country," he said, "has invested a great deal in Palestine—both in money and in men. So now I want to tell America what has become of these investments."

Good Investment
The round, sparsely-bearded little leader chuckled as he declared that, "without criticism of America's business judgement, the investments in Palestine have proved much safer than those in most other countries."

"The land is showing promising development," he continued. "Compared to other regions of similar natural resources, it is a Paradise. But, of course, more money is needed, and this must be used mainly for the improvement of agriculture. Palestine is essentially an agricultural country, and the back to the land movement is important for the health and psychology of the race. The Jew has shown himself capable as a pioneer."

Americans Give One-Third
In its 30 years of activity the Jewish National Fund has raised $10,000,000, more than a third of which has come from the American Jews.

By 1910 immigration had made good progress; new factories sprang up, new schools were built, orange-growing industries prospered; sand dunes sprouted trees; the Hebrew language was reborn, and a sand patch, destined to become the modern all Jewish city of Tel Aviv, was brought near Jaffa. Even Jerusalem showed signs of new life as suburbs sprung up on the edge of the ancient city.

Mass Movement Begins
Although the war temporarily stopped progress, the Balfour Declaration, the Magna Charta of the Zionists, gave renewed impetus to the Palestine movement, so that when the country was freed of the Turkish dominion it contained 59,000 Jews. Later, when the League of Nations finally threw of gates of Palestine wide open to the larger numbers who were waiting the signal of release from the lands of oppression, thousands began the trek to the Holy Land.

To cope with this mass movement, the Keren Hayesod (Palestine Foundation Fund) was organized in 1920. Under its direction training camps for agriculture were established, transportation facilities arranged and immigration camps to receive the newcomers were set up and groups were settled on the lands. Into this work of nation building the Keren Hayesod poured over $20,000,000 in the last decade, more than half of it coming from the United States.

Sidelights In News In Capital Of United States

(By The United Press)

Washington, Jan. 7.—The office of education of the Department of the Interior has been putting down and adding up figures—one of the functions of numerous government departments—about schools. It has found that in 1931 there were spent in the United States $3,300,000,000 for education. A total of 29,365,000 persons were enrolled during the year in the nation's schools public and private, which means that there was an expenditure of a little more than $100 for each pupil enrolled. It required 1,029,000 teachers to instruct all these pupils or approximately one teacher for each 29 pupils.

The statisticians predict that first grade enrollments are going to decrease in the next 10 years for the very solid reason that there are fewer children right now than there were 10 years ago. The government figures that there were 128,940 less children under five years of age in the United States in 1930, for instance, than in 1920.

Another government department has figured that the country's farms mortgaged for a total of $9,241,000,000, which is three times the bill for education. That figure is 24 less than in 1928, but about a billion and a half more than in 1920. Of the total mortgages on farms, one ninth is on farms in Iowa—$1,098,610,000. California has $548,421,000 in mortgages on its farms, Rhode Island, the smallest state, has the smallest amount of mortgages, $3,853,000 with Nevada next with $14,727,000. Texas, the largest state in the area, carries $543,951,000 on its farms.

And F. Clyde Baggarley of the Federal Trade Commission through a long period of research, has found that at the age of 17 George Washington has his first try at city planning, laying out the town of Washington, Va., now a village of around 500 people. One of the streets he named "Gay street" presumably after Gey Fairfax, his first sweetheart. When Washington tried city planning again he hired Pierre Le'Enfant to do it for him and Washington, D. C. is the result.

Fourteen Years Of Blindness Is Ended For Fisher

New York, Jan. 7.—(UP)—Eugene Fisher looked out on a new world today, one that had changed vastly since 14 years ago when cataracts closed his vision.

When blindness came to him he was told his case was incurable. In those 14 years styles have changed, The World War ceased to be the headline in the newspapers, nickel movie shows have given way to the big cinema palaces.

Recently the New York Association for the Blind found him. They summoned a doctor. He said Fisher's case was one that might be treated by operation. They operated and the unbroken blackness gave way to unbroken whiteness. Fisher still did not believe and thought it was a hoax.

Then the nurse asked him: "What color is the doctor's moustache?"

"Why he hasn't any. I see him plain as I ever saw anyone," Fisher said.

"I was born again," he explained today.

Then he started on a tour of sightseeing. Among his observations:

The modern movie isn't as good as the old nickelodeon.

The crowds are rougher than they were before he went blind.

Women appear strange smoking. Children are "fresher."

Skirts have not changed much—he missed the short skirt era.

He looked into a mirror and for the first time in 14 years saw himself.

"Gee, how old you got, I said to myself. I didn't know my own self."

Fred Frye were the assistant hostesses.

Miss Lucille Stecher returned to Danville Tuesday to resume her duties as Girl's Reserve Secretary of the Y. W. C. A., having spent the holiday vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Stahlner.

The Ministerial Association and their families enjoyed a scrambled luncheon Monday at the Methodist parsonage. Rev. L. R. Munion gave a paper on "Private Meditations."

RUTH THINKS HE IS JUST AS GOOD AS HE EVER WAS

Therefore He's Going To Object To Any Cut In Salary

New York, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Babe Ruth not only thinks he still is worth $80,000 a year to the Yankees, but he has no idea whatever of quitting the game so long as he can hold his own with "these young fellows."

"I might like to be a manager of a big club some day although I haven't given that much thought," said Ruth. "I want to round out at least 20 years playing as a regular and as many more as I can get. The only thing I don't want to do is hang around so long they have to pay me the bench or the gate and tell me I'm an old man. But the way I feel now I'm good for at least five more years."

In better condition today than he has ever been and with the figures of his manager, Arlie McGovern, to prove it, Ruth is ready to show his employer a number of good reasons why he should be kept on the payroll without a cut.

"I haven't talked it over with Col. Ruppert," Ruth told newspapermen after a brisk workout before the cameras. "and I don't expect any trouble when I do but I still think I'm worth that $80,000. I'd like to sign for that on a one or two year basis."

"Last year was one of the best I have ever had, despite the injury that laid me up for a few days in Boston. But for that I think I would have had a good chance to break the home run record. I still think I can do it, the ball doesn't seem any dead to me. When I sock it right, it still goes plenty far, I believe."

Among other items of public interest, Ruth admits he recently shot a round of 73 at golf; that his waistline now is reduced to a mere 38 inches (a foot less than it measured in 1925); that he's a better movie actor than he thought he was and that the 1932 American League pennant race "should be a breeze" for the Yankees.

"Yeah, I know the Athletics still have Grove and Earnshaw, and those babies can pitch and the Simmons can hit," he argued, "but we should have beaten 'em last year and we will do it this year because the Yanks will have a lot better pitching."

Ruth was to have had a workout with Max Schmeling yesterday for the benefit of photographers at McGovern's gymnasium but the heavyweight champion at the last minute telephoned he was otherwise engaged.

"Hey, you don't suppose that guy took a runout, do you?" demanded Ruth as he swung a left hook to the chin that dazed McGovern, during a brief sparring match.

Sports Parade

By HENRY McLEMORE
United Press Staff Correspondent
New York, Jan. 7.—(UP)—It may be the warm winds that rustle through the palm fronds and then again it may be the way-down-to-here cut of the 1932 doll baby bathing suits, but whatever it is Florida certainly packs a strong allure for the boys who run the better prize fights. And by better prize fights I mean those that stand a chance of losing a couple of hundred thousand smackers.

You don't realize just how potent is Florida's allure for the boys until you remember that only one of the big scraps held down by the sad sea waves made any money. And the lone money-maker of the bunch—the Sharkey-Stribling shindig—required the genius of Tex Rickard and the popularity of Jack Dempsey to keep it out of the red.

But the boys seem to forget this when January rolls into February and the wind becomes very chilly indeed as it whips up, down and across Broadway. All of which I consider a very elegant boost for Florida, for when any of the fight boys yearn to return to a place where a little of the old sugar is not a guaranteed thing, you can write it down that that place offers something mighty nice.

Today, barring a last minute tie-up with the Messrs. Jack Kearns, Joe Jacobs and Jimmy Johnson will go into solemn huddle and emerge with a set of signed papers calling for heavyweight champion Max Schmeling to defend his title against Mickey Walker in Miami, Feb. 26.

Now I swore off gambling last year when I bought two tickets on the Irish Sweepstakes and still failed to finish in the money, but I'm sorely tempted to lay a little wager that the Schmeling-Walker thing will wind up with Madison Square Garden holding the sack. If it does, you may rest assured it will be held gracefully, for the Garden, bless 'em, has had plenty of experience here of late.

The good citizens of Florida are tremendously excited about the bout. I was down that way for a couple of weeks not so long ago and not once did I hear an encouraging remark. To the folks down there the scrap is just another bout between a champion of doubtful ability and a guy who as a heavyweight is a swell middleweight.

Match At Davenport

The Dixon Recreation Bowling Team motored to Davenport, Iowa, Sunday afternoon and won their match series with the Hilson Recreation of that city. The large crowd loose money is pretty scarce in these United States right now and Florida, up until noon today, at least, still was a part of the United States. The wealthy folks floating in and around Miami this winter won't be numerous to make the bout go over. You only have to read how the race tracks are making out to get a straight tip on the easy money situation in Florida.

The only sensible place for the fight is New York or Chicago. If Schmeling were in the good graces of the New York Boxing Commission and the bout could be held in the Garden, it would do all right. There are plenty of Germans in and around Chicago, and the scrap would do a right brisk business there.

But Miami! No man!

Baseball Gossip

New York, Jan. 7.—(AP)—An indication of how far the new major league policy of economy is due to come to light soon. The New York Giants put 35 contracts for the coming season in the mail yesterday and although Secretary Jim Tierney would say nothing about the amounts involved, fans expect that they will hear soon about any important salary cuts.

Toledo, O., Jan. 7.—(AP)—The Toledo franchise in the American Association was up for sale today and Harry Brennan, advertising man, hoped to get it.

Brennan's bid was the only one, so far as was known, offered when bids were accepted by Judge James S. Martin yesterday. The court announced the sale would be made today.

Brennan, a former associate of Clarence Rowland in operating the Milwaukee Association team, said he would be able to rehabilitate the Toledo club, now in receivership, in short order.

Frank Cleary played a very important part in that last game spurt by collecting 258 pins his last game. John Lange also donated along with Ed Detweiler with games of 210 and 207, respectively. Cleary also rolled high series for the entire match with a total of 642 pins. A return game will be played at Dixon in the near future.

ATHLETIC BOARD ASKED LITTLE TO RESIGN HIS POST

Inside Of Negotiations At Wisconsin Come To The Surface

Madison, Wis., Jan. 7.—(AP)—The University of Wisconsin Athletic Council requested George Little to resign as Director of Athletics, the legislative committee investigating the athletic department was told at a hearing here.

Late yesterday the committee learned that the council took a straw ballot on which Glenn Thistlethwaite head football coach, received the five faculty votes for director, and that Dr. Walter Meanwell, basketball coach, received two votes. The committee also was told that Irwin Uteritz, the new Director of Intercollegiate Athletics, represented a compromise between the faculty and alumni members of the Council.

Prof. J. P. A. Pyre, chairman of the council, divulged the actions taken by the council in its secret sessions since the close of the football season.

"Did the council request Little's resignation?" he was asked.

"Yes, in a certain sense," was the answer.

"Did you tell Little to resign?"

"Not personally, a committee informed him."

"Isn't it more or less a fact that the council made Little the goat?"

Was there any dissatisfaction with Little's program in general?"

"Not in general. The council had the impression he had failed to handle the affairs of the department competently at all times."

Pressed for "one specific reason" for Mr. Little's resignation, Prof. Pyre countered with the assertion the resignation came from an "accumulation of feelings," that there had been "bungling" and "vaccillation" at times.

Assemblyman Frederick Krez said he understood the Athletic Council was ready to dispense with Coach Thistlethwaite a year ago but that the council received a flood of telegrams from alumni which asked for his retention. Prof. Pyre said he did not think the council was ready and expressed doubt that telegrams would influence the council's decision.

The Assemblyman also asked whether Northwestern had been dropped from football schedule at the suggestion of Coach Thistlethwaite. Prof. Pyre said he thought not. Assemblyman Krez suggested that other Big Ten schools with good athletic records "don't take the faculty seriously" and asked whether the same situation could not exist at Wisconsin. Prof. Pyre suggested that other schools would keep out of trouble if the faculty were given more voice in athletic matters.

The witness said the council has not yet decided on a coach to succeed Thistlethwaite.

George Downer, Director of Publicity, George Lewis, Director of Ticket Sales, and Robert Foss and Harry Schwenker, their respective assistants, were other witnesses. The former denied that Coach Thistlethwaite had ever asked him to "play up" certain players on the squad.

KEARNS' BOAST OF YEARS AGO IS MADE GOOD

After Break With Old Mauler He Said He Would Come Back

New York, Jan. 7.—(UP)—With the signing of contracts this afternoon for the Max Schmeling-Mickie Walker world heavyweight championship bout at Miami, Fla., Feb. 26, Jack Kearns, manager of Walker, will maintain his ranking as the miracle man of modern fight managers.

Kearns signed for many heavyweight championship fights as manager of Jack Dempsey between 1919 and 1923. But to land a heavyweight championship contract after eight years absence from championship councils is a real accomplishment.

When Kearns, after his break with Dempsey, announced he would be back at the top, dictating heavyweight affairs after Dempsey was gone and forgotten, few people took his words seriously. And when he took over Mickey Walker, who had lost the welterweight title to Pete Latzo, and began ballyhooing him as a heavyweight title contender, folks shook their heads and agreed that poor old Doc Kearns was slightly barmy.

Barmy he may have been, but he has forced Walker's acceptance as an opponent for champion Max Schmeling.

And if Walker wins, the stage will be set, for Jack Dempsey, whose association with Kearns has run the gamut from inseparable friendship to bitter enmity, would be in line for the first chance at Walker's title.

Kearns' present interest is the signing of contracts for the Walker-Schmeling bout, scheduled for 3 o'clock this afternoon.

The bout will be over a 15-round route in Madison Square Garden arena at Miami on Feb. 26 with George Blake of Los Angeles as referee.

The Madison Square Garden Corporation of Florida and Illinois will cooperate in the promotion with Schmeling receiving 40 per cent of the net receipts and Walker accepting 15 per cent.

SCHEDULE BIG DAMPER TO RED SOX AMBITIONS

Will Have To Go Up Against Three Best Teams At Start

Boston, Jan. 7.—(AP)—If the Boston Red Sox could start the American League race against the western clubs instead of the slugging easterners, President Bob T. Quinn and Manager "Shano" Collins would be a happy pair.

But the schedule, they expect, will again get their team off on the wrong foot for the Sox have some 20-odd games with the slaughtering Athletics, Yankees and Senators before meeting up with any of their western peers. Prospects seem very bright with one of the best pitching staffs in either league. A fair catching department, an infield with only one doubtful spot and a well-rounded and veteran outfield.

"Shano" whose watchword is to "hustle" has moved the spring training camp from Pensacola to Savannah.

Collins will start for Georgia next month with about 32 players, the smallest spring training squad in many years.

It is likely that last year's hurling corps will again carry the burden. The veterans include Wiley Moore, Danny MacFayden, Horace Lisenbee, Ed Durham, Ed Morris and Jack Russell. Collins has high hopes that young Bob Kline, a reliever who last year, will get going and that old Pete Donahue, a great right hander with the Cincinnati Reds years ago, will be able to come back.

Bill Sweeney is booked for another whirl at first base and Hal Rhyme shortstop, is counted upon for another year. Marty McManus seems to fill the third base hole nicely, leaving only second base to worry about.

The outfield includes Webb, Tom Oliver and Al Van Camp, a veteran trio.

Charlie Berry, who watches over the pitchers, will again be called upon to do most of the catching, with Eddie Connelly, Howard Storey and Red Harrgrave, formerly of Detroit and late of Baltimore, battling for the relief job.

JONES BUILDING COURSE BASED ON TOUGHEST HOLES

King Of Golf Believes His Course Will Be Perfect

By WILLIAM BRAUCHER

New York, Jan. 6.—(NEA Service)—Down in the heart of the magnolia country near Augusta, Ga., Bobby Jones is building what he believes will be the nearest perfect golf course in the world.

It will be patterned after the famous holes Jones has played in America and abroad. The "tough holes" at St. Andrews, Oakmont, Royal St. George's, Mamaroneck and other well-known links and courses will be there. The new course is to be called the Augusta National and is being financed as a non-profit organization by Jones' friends in Wall Street and the south.

"It is not going to be such a long course," Jones wrote to a friend here recently, "but will rather put a premium on accuracy. There won't be a 500-yard hole in the layout. But there will be plenty of holes, such as the Redan one-shotter, where a fellow will have to think."

Dr. Alister Mackenzie, a native Scot, is cooperating with Jones in the engineering problems the new course offers. Mackenzie has been responsible for making it hard for inaccurate golfers on both sides of the Atlantic where he has designed links and courses. The Cypress Point, near Del Monte, Calif., is regarded as his outstanding achievement in America. Mackenzie has designed more than 400 courses.

The site of the new course is a beautiful tract of land first land- owned by the Berkmans family many years ago when they came to a virgin forest of pine and oak. A row of magnolia trees more than 100 years old forms an entrance to the estate.

The new Jones course will carry out his idea that mere ability to slug a ball over the hills and far away constitutes good golf. The National will be 6300 yards in length from the workaday tees, 6700 yards for championship play.

The aim is to provide a layout where each shot must be sharp and a test of the player's knowledge of his clubs and stroking ability. Short, accurate hitting will have an advantage over power for which direction often is sacrificed. Also, at Augusta there will be small chance of making up ground lost through bad errors.

Membership in the National is being carefully drawn from all parts of the country. Several Canadian and English sportsmen also will be invited to join. It is my understanding that a group of Wall Street people has underwritten the venture thus assuring its completion.

There will be no women members, but the rules of the club politely admit them to the course as guests of members. It is the idea of Jones and his associates to make the place in capital letter, A GOLF COURSE, and to exclude so-called functions under club auspices.

One of the unusual features will be an actual 19th hole for playoffs, to be called the "quits" hole. Jones says the course will be ready for play within the year.

CUSTER BOOMED AS CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR

Springfield Hears He Will Be Backed By Governor Emmerson

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 7.—(UP)—A boom for Omer N. Custer, Galesburg, Chairman of the State Tax Commission and former State Treasurer, for the Republican nomination for Governor had taken form today with publication by the Illinois State Journal of a report circulated here yesterday, that Custer was to make the race, supported by Governor L. L. Emmerson, who, it was said, had decided not to run.

Despite the authenticity of the report, both Emmerson and Custer declined to comment.

Custer, who conferred with a group of political leaders yesterday, appeared somewhat amused by the printed story, but declined to verify or deny the report that he would be a candidate.

Though the report stated he and Emmerson were to make statements today, Custer declared there would be no statement on his part. Emmerson also, said he would have nothing to say.

"I am too busy with the matter of taxation—too busy to discuss the coming Republican primary campaign," the Governor said.

Can Have A Place. That Custer can have a place on the state ticket is believed almost certain. That he is being urged to announce his candidacy for some office was indicated by a conference he had with a group of Republican leaders here yesterday.

At the conference were John Oglesby, former Lieutenant Governor, Garrett D. Kinney, State Finance Director, George F. Harding of Chicago; and Custer. Kinney, it is said, urged Custer to run for Lieutenant Governor and Oglesby to run for United States Senator.

Custer has been suggested repeatedly as a candidate for Governor. Stories that he would make the race supported by Emmerson were printed a year ago and have been revived from time to time. He has been quoted as saying that he would not be a gubernatorial candidate as long as Emmerson desired to run.

Custer, however, has generally "scotched" such reports about them. More recently it was suggested that he run for Lieutenant Governor.

The former State Treasurer is rated as one of the best vote getters in the state. He is extremely popular in the northwest part of the state where he is publisher of the Galesburg Register-Mail.

ENJOYS LIFE AS OTHERS AFTER 20 YEARS SUFFERING. Gly-Cas Unfailing in Reaching Stubborn Cases, Lady Feels Like New.

Dixon has had many medicines introduced here in past years but many local people now realize, and are glad to tell others, that there never was a medicine like Gly-Cas in reaching their stubborn cases of rheumatism, stomach, kidney, bowel, blood and nerve troubles. Read what Mrs. T. L. Alexander, 1101 West 10th St., Bartlesville, Okla., said recently:

"I cannot say too much for Gly-Cas after what it has done for me," she said. "I had suffered years with stomach trouble, bloated, hardly able to eat anything, could not sleep at times I was unable to work and was confined to bed. Rheumatism and neuritis attacked me and I was miserable until I began taking Gly-Cas. This great herbal remedy was miraculous in my stubborn case as it freed me of all my former health troubles."

Gly-Cas is sold by Campbell's White Cross Pharmacy, Schildberg's Pharmacy, Dixon, and by all leading drug stores in surrounding towns.

Iowa Communist Organization Is To Be Capitalized

Amana, Iowa, Jan. 7.—(AP)—A Communist organization which has existed for more than two centuries under the plan of "share and share alike," was moving today toward incorporation as a stock company under the laws of Delaware.

The Amana Colonies, organized in Germany in 1714 and established here in 1845, may shortly become a capitalist group with assets valued at $1,250,000 in which the 1,400 members of the community will hold stock.

The Board of Trustees Tuesday approved the form of the reorganization and declared that final action now depends on a vote to be taken shortly among residents of the community.

This picturesque German community in which cooking is still done in community kitchens and the common granary is the repository and source of supply for all grain raised in the vicinity, resisted for many years the inroads of capitalism.

But in recent years Amana's youth has become dissatisfied, outsiders have become more numerous in and about the colonies, a lack of strong discipline to enforce work left many individual doing a disproportionate share, and many have come to feel they had little chance for advancement, according to leaders of the community.

Early in the summer of 1931 the matter was put to a vote and sentiment favored a change, the leaders said.

The plan as submitted calls for issuance of common stock, shares of which will be issued to members of the society. Preferred stock may also be issued. The revised organization will be known as the Mana Society, Inc., and its assets will include 26,000 acres of land, woolen and cereal mills, jobbing houses and stores, and buildings, livestock and equipment in the villages and on the farms.

AMENDMENT TO CONSTITUTION MAY BE VOTED. Congress Is Likely To Submit "Lame Duck" Resolution.

Washington, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The dogged determination of Senator George W. Norris may be rewarded with victory at last.

THREE KINDS OF LOVE BY KAY CLEAVER STRAHAN

BEGIN HERE TODAY

ANN, CECILY AND MARY FRANCES FENWICK live with their grandparents. The sisters have been orphaned since childhood. The grandparents—known as "HOS-SALIE" and "GRAND"—have long since lost their wealth and the household is supported by Ann and Cecily's earnings. For this reason, Ann, 28, and PHILIP ECHOID, young lawyer, are still postponing their marriage though they have been engaged 8 years.

Cecily, 22, is in love with HARRY MCKEL, an engineer, but when he proposes she refuses to name the wedding date because she cannot leave Ann with the financial responsibility of the home.

Mary-Frances, 15, and still in school, strikes up an acquaintance with EARL DEARMONT, stock company actor. She meets him secretly on several occasions. Mary-Frances has led him to believe she is a vaudeville act.

They take Ann to dinner at a mountain resort.

Now GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXVI "YOU'VE been so good, lately," Ann said. "And I know you are working too hard. All that evening work."

"Do you know, Ann, when you look like this you are so beautiful that I scarcely feel as if I had a right to love you. When I'm away from you I forget, at times, how very beautiful you are—or I decide that perhaps I am exaggerating it. But when I get with you again—it makes me humble, dear."

"Phil! Isn't that silly? Every one says I'm good looking, so I suppose I must be. But it is no credit to me, I didn't make my face. You don't love me just because I'm pretty, do you, dear?"

"You aren't pretty," he said. "You are supremely beautiful. I loathe pretty women."

"Nothing of the sort, Cecily's pretty, and you don't loathe her."

"Nor do I think she is pretty. She has a charm about her face; but her features are far too small and her coloring is too delicate to suit me. It won't last as yours lasts, Ann. But let's leave Cecily out for this one evening. Here we are, just the two of us. Let's leave everyone else in the world out for this evening, will you?"

"We will," she agreed. "Don't look right away," she went on, "but there's a girl over there who keeps staring at us. Just now she said something to the boy with her, and he turned to look. I wonder whether you know her?"

Phil looked instantly. He nodded to the girl. His face flushed, and when he turned it again to Ann there was a suggestion of fright and anger in it.

"What's the trouble?" she asked. "Nothing whatever. She works across the hall from my office—a filing clerk, I believe."

The encounter, at least, was not Philip's fault. Letty had told him that she had to go with her mother that evening out to see a poor old blind lady who lived in Forest fairly easy adoption. Sentiment in the House membership generally is favorable.

If Norris wins through, the people will have another constitutional amendment to vote upon. The proposal is to alter present provisions so that Congress will meet each year on January 2, the January succeeding the November elections. The President and Vice President would take office on January 15 instead of on March 4.

No statutory limit would remain on any session of Congress. As things stand now the second session lasts only from December to March, when terms of the members expire. The members elected before that second session opens do not begin legislating—barring a special session—until next December, 13 months after the voters have chosen them.

The short term finds legislation initiated and passed by Representatives and Senators who have been defeated by their constituents—"lame ducks."

Grove.

"But," said Ann, "you looked as if you were angry, or embarrassed, or something."

"I was, possibly. You told me not to look just then, but I did and got caught in the act. Also, I was slightly annoyed over the fact that people were staring at us and discussing us."

"She does stare," said Ann. "She hasn't taken her eyes away from me once since they sat down over there."

"And that," said he, "is the penalty of beauty, you know. But suppose you stop looking at her, and you won't know that she is looking at you."

"I tried looking again at the mountain; but it had lost its Alpine glow and had become a forbidding thing, in cold blues and whites, as lonely as majesty."

"She has such a bright, hard way of staring," Ann said. "It's sort of gets on my nerves."

"Shall we allow it to spoil our evening, or shall we forget it?" Ann asked. "How well do you know her, Phil?"

"My dear girl—" odd how nothing can be as impatient as patience, heavily stressed—"how well is one apt to know an office associate?"

"I thought she worked in the office across the hall."

"She does. We meet occasionally in the hall or in the elevator. Not long ago she lost the heel of her shoe in the downstairs entrance and I took it around to the shoe-maker's for her. Since then, she stepped into my office one day to sew the hem of her dress—or petticoat—that had ripped."

"Why didn't she sew it in her own office?"

"Because there happened to be about a dozen or more people in her office, and I am alone in mine."

"Oh," said Ann. The girl had stopped staring and was writing something with a red fountain pen she had borrowed from her escort.

"Why didn't you tell me?" said Ann.

"Tell you what?"

"About the heel, and the ripped hem and all?"

Phil pressed his lips together, and straightened them to a smile, and shook his head slowly. He meant, by so openly despairing of Ann's intelligence, to shame her; but it seemed not to work that way.

"Why didn't you tell me?" said Ann.

stealthy—an erratic combination at best—had started toward their table, had grown shy, had paused to rearrange some flowers in a vase.

"You are jealous of Cecily and Mary-Frances and Grand and Rosalie."

Philip was about to say that her accusation was unjust and untrue, but the waiter spoke first. "Everything all right, sir?"

Philip said, "Yes. Quite all right."

"Pretty view out east there," the waiter suggested.

ANN looked out east there. Philip said, "Yes." The waiter moved away.

"May I see that note, Phil?" Ann said.

"Shall I pass it across immediately? Or might I look at it first?"

"Read it yourself, first," said Ann.

"Some nonsense," he frowned, as he unfolded the tight two square inches of paper. He continued frowning as he read: "Darling sweetheart man: I didn't story to you, honestly I didn't. Call me up when you get home and I'll explain everything. Your L. If I think you are mad at me I won't sleep a wink. Call up sure."

Semi-sensibleness was all that was ever claimed for Letty; but occasional cleverness has been claimed for Phil, and an assumption that he was smart enough to make his way in the world. He did something, don't we, that we can't find in the hurly-burly of lights and music and people?"

"Darling," Phil pleaded. "Don't, please! I'll explain everything later."

A certain similarity to the wording of the note may be seen. But Ann, who had not read the note, liked the unusual "darling," and she liked, also, the eager promise to explain. She did not like the connotation of "everything," so she repeated it.

"Everything?"

Philip had gained time and found himself. "There is nothing to explain," he said. "After all, I am a lawyer, and I do try to observe some of the ethics of my profession."

"You didn't tell me that she was a client of yours."

"She isn't. But there happens to be another woman with a poor old blind mother—" He stopped. "See here, Ann, I have no right to go into this. If you insist—But why not take my word for it and trust me? Won't you please do that, dear?"

"Well, yes," said Ann. "Still I do think it is very strange that he should have to write notes about it in a place like this."

"She didn't have to. She is an extraordinarily silly little girl. She could have stopped in the office for a moment in the morning. I suspect that the sole reason for her sending the note was to make the boy she is with jealous."

"Or me?" said Ann. "What's her name?"

"Hardly. She's silly, but not catty, I believe. At any rate, you aren't jealous, are you, you Beautiful?"

"No," said Ann. "What's her name?"

"King. Miss King."

"What's her first name?"

"Letty, I believe she said. Hetty—Betty—something of the sort. I really don't remember. You aren't eating your pastry, dear. Don't you care for it? Shall I order something else for you?"

"No, thank you. I've had all I can eat. Get your check, Phil, and let's go."

RADIO RIALTO

THRILLING TALES OF NORTH-WEST MOUNTED IN NEW BROADCASTS

The real story of Canada's Northwest Mounted Police, written by the official historian of the group that "always gets its man," will be presented in a series of programs over an NBC-WJZ network on Mondays, at 9 P. M., C. S. T., the initial broadcast to be heard on January 11.

F. Morris Longstreth, who claims the distinction of being the only man ordered to have ever been granted access to the complete records of the group, will write the continuity for the program, to be known as "With Canada's Mounted." Official permission for the continuity in each manuscript was necessary before the series could be put on, according to the program sponsor.

Each broadcast will be a complete story in itself, giving inside facts about Canadian crime and criminals. The initial broadcast will tell how a notorious forger was run to earth. The program to be entitled "The Case of Ernest Campbell."

Longstreth is the author of "Son of the Mounted Police" and "The Silent Force," and has spent many years in delving into the history of the organization about which he writes.

WHITEMAN WILL BE ON ALL STAR SHOW

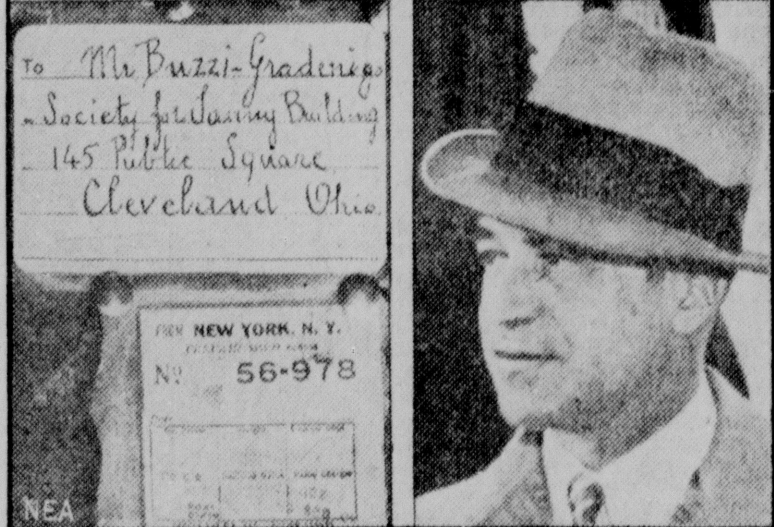

It became known today that one of the most important announcements in the history of broadcasting in connection with radio programming is to be made personally by Paul Whiteman on the All-Star Air Show is to be presented by the National Broadcasting Company.

No imitation as to the exact nature of this announcement has been given by the sponsors of the program except that it will be of unusual interest to the youth of America.

The decision to make this announcement was reached at a conference between Mr. Whiteman and Here is what those bombs sent to prominent Italians in America in a nation-wide bomb plot look like, and two of their intended victims. It has also been learned that the program is to include one of the best-known figures of the musical stage, Jennette MacDonald, who will sing from New York City.

The program itself will be of an hour's duration from 7 to 8 P. M., C. S. T., Saturday, over an NBC-WEAF coast to coast network.

Some years ago the owner of a big California farm offered to pay $2,000 for two inches of rain in three days, provide the rain-maker would put up $200 to be forfeited in case of failure. The offer was declined, though the conditions at the time were not unfavorable for rain, and showers to the extent of four inches actually fell within the next 48 hours.

Sometimes the rain comes as promised, and sometimes not. The shrewd rain-maker will score a pretty large percentage of successes, for two reasons. In the first place, as a rule his services are not engaged until the drought has prevailed so long that its termination in the near future has become highly probable. In the second place, by keeping watch of local indications, and also, perhaps, by taking a shy look at the official weather map, the rainmaker often can time his operations so that they will coincide with changes in atmospheric conditions upon which the occurrence of rain depends.

Did you ever stop to think

EDSON R. WAITE

George S. Hotchkiss, editor of the Doylestown, Pa., Daily Intelligence, says:

That the depression did us a good turn when it turned the attention of people of our American communities more impressively to the fact that right at home there is a great need for missionary work that has been lavished for years on strangers across the oceans.

Not so long ago I was interested in a report of a missionary society. First the speakers told about the great work in Far Eastern countries where American millions had built great hospitals and homes and schools in addition to taking the Gospel to those "benighted" lands.

Then—oh, then, fellow Americans—the home mission, spokeswoman held forth. Her picture was "not so good." It pictured the poor "mountain whites" of the South with only ramshackle one-room wooden buildings for both school and church purposes and one hospital for a tremendous area.

But the tide is changing, a ministerial friend assures me. The churches are beginning to conclude that they have gone far beyond showing strangers beyond the seas The Light—and that it is now up to them to carry on, while Americans turn their attention more to crying home needs for schools, hospitals, homes, decent housing and better social and health conditions.

But it is a job that is not merely up to the churches. When public affairs are carried on more economically, in a more business-like way, we will have hundreds of millions in this country to see that the needy—those who need education, spiritual direction and help along social and health lines—get it from members of the family who can see these needs and the "Acres of Diamonds" in the home field.
